

Edo

Design: Tommaso Caldera

Description

The Edo chair is a tribute to traditional craftsmanship. Made of solid ash wood, the structure is designed as a frame to which different fabric or leather seating solutions can be attached, making it versatile and suitable for different environments. With an elegant design inspired by Japanese aesthetics - the chair takes its name from ancient Tokyo - it is made up of circular section legs with a conical profile, while the backrest, in contact with the body, has an elliptical section that is more pleasant to the touch, which is also a detail with a distinctively simple design.

The structure is made of solid ash (wood from well-managed forests) in the colors bleached, natural stained oak and black stained. The legs and crosspieces are intertwined, so that all the elements that define the style of the chair are also functional and indispensable for its construction. The seat is made of polyurethane foam and upholstered in fabric, leather or saddle-hide. The fabric/leather seat upholstery is removable; the saddle-hide upholstery is not removable. Made in Italy.
