

Com Table

By Giulio Iacchetti for PRIMAR

Description

The Contemporary Com Table is a sculptural piece made entirely from natural stone through the technique of turning. Its circular top is supported by a central structure composed of three truncated cones, creating a harmonious relationship between geometry and material. Designed for both indoor and outdoor environments, Com interprets stone as both an architectural and functional element. The result is a contemporary table that emphasizes the solidity of the material while maintaining a refined and essential formal presence. Made in Italy.
